Course Description

A survey of the social, political, economic, cultural, and intellectual history of the United States from the pre-Columbian era to the Civil War/Reconstruction period. United States History I includes the study of pre-Columbian, colonial, revolutionary, early national, slavery and sectionalism, and the Civil War/Reconstruction eras. Themes that may be addressed in United States History I include: American settlement and diversity, American culture, religion, civil and human rights, technological change, economic change, immigration and migration, and creation of the federal government.

Requisites

Student must satisfy TSI Reading requirements, either through specific coursework with a grade of C or better, passing test scores, or approved exemptions/waivers.

State-Defined Learning Outcomes

Create an argument through the use of historical evidence. Analyze and interpret primary and secondary sources. Analyze the effects of historical, social, political, economic, cultural, and global forces on this period of United States history.

Instructor-Defined Learning Outcomes

The History Podcasters Project challenges students to transform complex historical research into clear, engaging, and professional-quality audio storytelling. Rather than simply repeating information, students will develop original podcast episodes that synthesize textbook material, film analysis, and primary sources into a cohesive and compelling narrative.

This project is designed to move beyond surface-level summaries. Students will analyze and interpret historical evidence, construct arguments, and communicate their findings in a format accessible to a broad public audience a podcast creation. By requiring the integration of multiple types of sources—including written texts, visual media, and material culture—this assignment ensures that student work reflects deep undergraduate-level synthesis rather than a basic summary of information.

The project is scaffolded across the term, with one component due each week for five weeks. Each stage builds on the previous one, guiding students through the research, scripting, production, and revision process. Because of the structured and cumulative design, consistent progress and on-time completion of each stage are essential to overall success.

In addition to strengthening historical thinking skills, this project develops highly marketable, real-world competencies. Upon completion, students can highlight the following skills on resumes and LinkedIn profiles:

- Multimedia Content Production: Writing scripts, recording audio, and editing polished podcast episodes
- Information Synthesis: Integrating textbooks, films, primary documents, and artifacts into a cohesive narrative
- Project Management: Meeting strict, sequential deadlines in a fast-paced academic environment
- Strategic Communication: Translating complex historical concepts into clear, engaging language for a general audience

Through this project, students not only deepen their understanding of the past but also practice communicating history in a format widely used in today's digital and professional landscapes.

The Marketable Skills Set

By completing this specific project, students can add the following line items to their resumes and LinkedIn profiles:

- Multimedia Content Production: Scripting, recording, and editing professional audio packages.
- Information Synthesis: Condensing dense textbooks, visual media (films, documentaries), and primary documents and material culture (artifacts) into a tight, cohesive narrative.
- Project Management: Meeting Strict sequential weekly milestones in a fast-paced environment.
- Strategic Communication: Translating complex academic concepts into a clear, engaging language for a broad public audience.

In this course, you will have the opportunity to practice the following marketable skills (<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/career-services/pages/marketable-skills.aspx>):

1. Data Tracking and research organization.
2. Professional copywriting, scriptwriting, and audience-targeted messaging.
3. Digital Literacy, basic audio engineering, and navigating intellectual property/copyright laws.

4. Giving and receiving constructive feedback, quality assurance (QA), and collaborative editing.

5. Public Relations/marketing writing and final project delivery.

Upon successful demonstration of a skill, you may be eligible to apply for a Digital Badge

Texas Core Objectives

The College defines essential knowledge and skills that students need to develop during their college experience. These general education competencies parallel the Texas Core Objectives for Student Learning. In this course, the activities you engage in will give you the opportunity to practice two or more of the following core competencies:

- A. Critical Thinking Skills: to include creative thinking, innovation, inquiry, and analysis, evaluation and synthesis of information;
- B. Communication Skills: to include effective development, interpretation and expression of ideas through written, oral and visual communication;
- C. Empirical and Quantitative Skills: to include the manipulation and analysis of numerical data or observable facts resulting in informed conclusions;
- D. Teamwork: to include the ability to consider different points of view and to work effectively with others to support a shared purpose or goal;
- E. Personal Responsibility: to include the ability to connect choices, actions and consequences to ethical decision-making; and
- F. Social Responsibility: to include intercultural competence, knowledge of civic responsibility, and the ability to engage effectively in regional, national, and global communities.

History through Film: All screenings for films and documentaries will be available for access through Brightspace, however, there are times when permissions expire and or the film or documentary has been removed. In these instances, the student is responsible for acquiring and viewing the film through traditional streaming services, Netflix, Tubi. Sites offering the film are posted in Brightspace and may contain a small fee if student does not subscribe to site. Instructor will notify students immediately if issues arise.

Peer Review discussions of required readings and film screening are led by students. Students must be prepared to lead the discussion and participate online during the week they are assigned and are listed in Brightspace. Peer Reviews are discussions that will engage students in activities designed to encourage discussion and exploration of historical topics. Through readings, individual writing, media screenings, and creative exercises, students investigate and analyze the promises and perils of a young and emergent America.

In addition, this media may be viewed during one of our class meetings. Please check Brightspace daily for any updates and or correction of links.

Film is an essential cultural product. As a cultural historian, understanding that film will allow students to put what they are reading into context with some form of action and representation of the characters and their roles to illustrate that time in our history. These are the films that will drive class discussion boards and additional conversational activities. Each of these films will be based on each student watching and participating in our class and online discussion boards, if applicable.

- Apocalypto, 2006
- America Before Columbus, 2009
- TBD

Course Requirement Checklist: is a requirement for this course and is worth 10 points. Students are required to have read and comprehended expectations for the course. Syllabus requirements are subject to the instructor's discretion and can be modified.

History Podcasters Project: Translate complex historical research, argumentation, and primary source analysis into clear, engaging, and professional audio storytelling. By requiring students to weave together textbook content, film analysis, and primary sources, which prevents the podcast from becoming a superficial Wikipedia summary. Instead, it forces deep undergraduate level synthesis while building highly marketable skills. This project is scaffolded over the course term one part is due each week for five weeks.

By completing this specific project, students can add the following line items to their resumes and LinkedIn profiles:

- Multimedia Content Production: Scripting, recording, and editing professional audio packages.
- Information Synthesis: Condensing dense textbooks, visual media (films, documentaries), and primary documents and material culture (artifacts) into a tight, cohesive narrative.
- Project Management: Meeting Strict sequential weekly milestones in a fast-paced environment.
- Strategic Communication: Translating complex academic concepts into a clear, engaging language for a broad public audience.

* Course Policies

By remaining in this course, the student agrees to adhere to the course structure presented in this syllabus.

Course Schedule and Syllabus Policy

The schedule provided in the syllabus is an overview of course topics and due dates and is subject to change at the instructor’s discretion to address course needs, unforeseen circumstances, or instructional adjustments.

Students will be notified of any schedule changes during the term; however, it is the student’s responsibility to monitor course updates. The course modules in the LMS serve as the official and most current source for all assignments, materials, and deadlines. All content posted in the modules is considered authoritative and supersedes any previous versions of the schedule.

- Accessibility Support and Captioned Media As part of my commitment to an accessible and inclusive learning environment, all audio and visual media used in this course will be provided with captions whenever possible. My goal is to meet students where they are and ensure that everyone has equitable access to course materials.

Limitations of Technology

While captioned media is increasingly the norm, captioning tools and media platforms do not always function perfectly. At times, captions may be missing, inaccurate, delayed, or unavailable due to technical issues beyond the instructor's control.

Student Responsibility and Collaborative Problem-Solving

If you rely on captioning as an accommodation or personal learning preference, you play an important role in helping maintain accessibility for yourself and the class. Therefore:

1. If you encounter a captioning issue, notify the instructor promptly.

Please include the title of the media, the problem you observed, and where it occurred.

2. Take an active role in accessibility by locating an alternative source when possible.

If captions fail, the student is encouraged to search for a comparable, properly captioned version of the same material (e.g., a different platform, library resource, or officially captioned upload) and share that source with the instructor.

3. A student's proactive communication helps ensure continuous access for you and your classmates. This process supports the integrity of the course, strengthens accessibility for everyone, and builds problem-solving skills that are essential in both academic and professional settings.

I will always make a good-faith effort to provide accessible media and will review and approve any alternative captioned sources students identify. Your collaboration ensures that learning remains unhindered, even when technical issues arise. Dallas College Accessibility Policy and Regulation (<https://www.dallascollege.edu/about/accessibility/policy/>).

Access & Technology Responsibility Statement for Dual Credit Students

Please be aware that third-party IT restrictions at K–12 institutions—including district firewalls, blocked websites, or limited device permissions—are not controlled by Dallas College or your instructor. If your high school blocks access to course materials, external websites, videos, or assignments, this is not something your instructor can fix, override, or change.

Your instructor is not obligated to modify assignments, provide alternative versions, or redesign coursework because of K–12 network restrictions. Dual credit students are enrolled in a college-level course, and it is your responsibility to ensure that you can access all required materials.

To successfully complete your work:

- You may use your own personal device and home internet connection,
- Or you are welcome to come to any Dallas College campus, where you may use computers in the library, computer labs, and other student-access areas.

If you experience access issues, please inform your instructor, but understand that it remains your responsibility to complete the assignment on time using an alternative connection or a Dallas College computer.

- Active Engagement Policy

Technology is a gift and a curse; therefore, the use of devices in this course is based upon specific situations, and all students must review and sign the Active Engagement Policy (<https://dccc.edu/active-engagement-policy>).

my.sharepoint.com/:w:/g/personal/fla0001_dcccd_edu/IQAq0j4bh2FbRYeT3sULmwbYAcoxedYDg_WWq50taprd85k?e=MxqCYt) document regarding the use of technology devices during class.

- Assessments

All assessments are completed in class on the date specified in the syllabus and in eCampus on the course content page. Occasionally, some tests and quizzes are completed online in eCampus. Please check with your instructor and the schedule for clarification. There is no make-up for missed exams, quizzes, or other assessments.

- Attendance

Attendance is tracked through active participation, including submitting assignments, engaging in discussions, and interacting with course materials. Students are expected to attend regularly and participate fully, as course content—including material for exams—will be presented in class and through assigned readings, films, and discussions.

Failure to attend or participate may affect your ability to meet course objectives and lower your grade. Absences, whether excused or unexcused, do not exempt students from completing required work. Regular attendance is a student's obligation, and excessive neglect of tasks may result in loss of knowledge and additional points offered.

If a student stops attending without officially withdrawing and is failing (below a D, or C for dual-credit students), an F will be assigned for the final grade in compliance with federal Title IV regulations. Similarly, students who complete all work but earn below a D (or C for dual credit) will receive an F.

Students should contact the instructor immediately in case of emergencies or illness to discuss possible solutions. Approval for minimal participation, missed work, or make-up work is at the instructor's discretion.

- Class Changes and Emergency Communication Policy

In rare cases, I may need to cancel a class meeting due to an emergency or make other last-minute changes. In this event, I will post an announcement to our eCampus course and send a copy by email. Please regularly check your Dallas College email address to make sure you do not miss emergency updates or other course communications.

Students will also receive email notifications from Dallas College (<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/online-services/pages/emergency-alerts.aspx>)g (<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/online-services/pages/emergency-alerts.aspx>)e Emer (<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/online-services/pages/emergency-alerts.aspx>)g (<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/online-services/pages/emergency-alerts.aspx>)enc (<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/online-services/pages/emergency-alerts.aspx>)y. - Email and Communication Practices

Students must use their Dallas College-issued email account for all communication. Emails sent from personal accounts (e.g., Gmail, work email) may be blocked by Dallas College IT systems and will not be accepted.

The instructor will respond to student emails within 24–72 hours, Monday through Friday. Emails sent after 12:30 PM on Friday, during weekends, or on college holidays will receive a response on the next business day.

Communication regarding grades or class performance will only be discussed with the enrolled student. Do not send third parties to speak on your behalf; such inquiries will not be addressed.

- Excused Absences

Our attendance policies are flexible only under specific circumstances. Excused absences include religious holidays, pre-approved professional activities, injury or illness of the student or an immediate family member. Verification of these events will be needed. Notification of anticipated absences must occur as early as possible.

- Non-Athletic absences (e.g., Medical, death/funeral, Court/Legal-related, etc.) for which a student is trying to obtain must be submitted to the Professor, with supporting documentation, for review and verification. Upon receipt, a staff member will examine and verify, as an official excuse, if applicable. All information is then submitted back to the professor, and the student is notified of the decision.

Student-Athlete Responsibilities. All students participating in Dallas College sports teams should have a calendar denoting dates and times of games at home and away. This calendar is due to the Professor during the first and second weeks of class at the start of every semester. It is the student's responsibility to communicate with the instructor and develop a plan for the student's and the team's success.

To stay on track academically, you must:

- Share your travel schedule with each instructor at the start of your season.
- Discuss class conflicts early and make a plan to complete missed work.
- Confirm arrangements about missed work with your instructor before each trip.
- Complete all assignments and coursework as required. Travel does not excuse your academic responsibilities.

- If illness or injury affects your attendance, it will be reported through the Department of Student Conduct, the department chair, and the Professor.
- Extra Credit

Up to 20 points of extra credit may be offered throughout the semester in various formats and at different times, often embedded within exams or other assessments. Extra credit is a privilege intended to enhance a student's current grade—not replace required assignments.

All extra credit points will be held until the end of the semester and awarded at the instructor's discretion. Students who miss any major assignment or accumulate five or more unexcused absences will forfeit all extra credit opportunities. Additionally, students who finish the course with an "A" average will not receive extra credit.

Any exceptions to this policy must be discussed with the instructor in advance.

- Health Services

Students who are ill are respectfully asked to adhere to best practices in public health, as explained by Health Services \(https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/health-centers/pages/default.aspx\)(<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/health-centers/pages/default.aspx>)<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/health-centers/pages/default.aspx>)<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/health-centers/pages/default.aspx>)g(<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/health-centers/pages/default.aspx>)e.edu/resources/health-centers/pa(<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/health-centers/pages/default.aspx>)g(<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/health-centers/pages/default.aspx>)es/default.aspx).(<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/health-centers/pages/default.aspx>).(<https://www.dallascollege.edu/resources/health-centers/pages/default.aspx>). If you are sick, please do not come to class. Contact the professor about next steps and provide documentation for absences that may be necessary. In addition, students who are too ill to engage in classroom activities will be responsible for obtaining all work and assignments required for this course.

- Late Work Policy

All assignments with a deadline must be turned in on or before that deadline. Late work is not accepted. If you believe you might miss a deadline when life intervenes, talk with Professor Avery before the deadline date and time. Not knowing due dates or having other plans/responsibilities is not an excuse because all due dates are listed on this syllabus.

No, I cannot "just open assignments back up." This is about fairness to all students in the class.

Everyone has the same opportunities and time windows to complete work.

All work is submitted in class, in person, on the due date during our class time together. Some assignments may offer the option to submit online. Please check with your instructor for more information.

I will not accept any assignments through email. Email is strictly for communication and not for submission of any assignments unless specifically requested by the instructor. Any assignments emailed to the instructor without prior authorization will be deemed a missing assignment and a grade of zero awarded.

- Makeup Work Policy (Fast-Track Course)

Dallas College recognizes that life circumstances can arise that may impact a student's ability to complete coursework. However, due to the accelerated nature of this 5-week course, the pace is significantly faster than a traditional semester, and assignments build quickly upon one another. As a result, opportunities for makeup work, extensions, or delays are extremely limited.

- If a student experiences a documented and unavoidable circumstance, they should contact the instructor as soon as possible to discuss options. Any consideration for makeup work or alternative arrangements is at the sole discretion of the instructor and must be completed within a very short timeframe, if permitted at all.

Students are strongly encouraged to plan ahead, stay current with all deadlines, and communicate proactively about any known conflicts. Because of the compressed schedule, falling behind—even briefly—can make it very difficult to successfully complete the course.

- Media and Film Because this is a college-level course and all assigned films and some media are rated R, it is the student's responsibility to preview all required content before the add/drop date and determine whether the course aligns with their personal values; any student who finds material personally inappropriate must speak with me immediately to discuss their concerns and options, which include student finding another course option, as this course may not meet their teaching style and content needs.

- Online Etiquette

As a class, we must consider and respectfully be mindful of our online interactions with each other. Below is a list of ways to properly behave in an online academic environment.

1. Students must be familiar with various forms of technology when taking a course utilizing online content and platforms.
2. Students must have access to the internet. Not having access to the internet is NOT an excuse for missing lectures, exams, quizzes, or any other assignments. This includes any system outage on any end of your connection, whether it is Dallas College, your ISP, or your dog chewed up your router. This is an online class. Prepare accordingly and have a backup plan. HINT: The best backup plan is to keep up with your work and not wait until the last minute.
3. Students need to understand that, because there may be a need for us to work and complete assignments online, that does not mean that the course is self-paced; self-discipline is required, and this class will take up time. Even online courses cover the same material as a face-to-face class, and it is up to the student to make time to get it done.
4. Students are expected to keep in contact with Professor Avery.
5. When emailing Prof. Avery, students must include the school, class, and section in which they are enrolled to get a timely response.
6. Students are expected to check the class and the email the school has on file for them often to avoid missing important posts. Use your Dallas College-issued email. Personal emails may get kicked out into spam and may not reach Prof. Avery.
7. Online courses are more formal than other online forums, like social media, and students are expected to behave as if they are in a formal setting. That means being professional, using correct grammar and spelling, and being mindful of language. Students can use emojis to convey tone because tone is typically lost online, but do not overuse them.

8. DO NOT TYPE IN ALL CAPS LIKE THIS!!!! IT IS ANNOYING!!!!
9. Be positive. Be respectful. Have fun!
10. Any violations of the Code will result in a referral to the Office for Student Conduct and may result in dismissal from this class.
11. Important safety tips: The professor also reserves the right to do the following to violators of the classroom behavior outlines: 1. Call out said violator's inappropriate behavior. 2. Eject said violator from the class. 3. Alter said violator's grade on the basis and severity of the violation, including dropping the student from the class entirely. This syllabus is a contract between the professor and all students enrolled in the class. Coming to the class on a particular day implies the student has read the contract and willfully abides by it. It is straightforward: respect the professor and the other students, and you will be shown the same respect.

- Plagiarism and Inappropriate AI Usage

Plagiarism and inappropriate AI usage in this class are strictly forbidden and violate the academic integrity policies. This is your first and only warning. Professor Avery and the tools at her disposal are the final arbiter in this process.

Any work deemed to be fully or partially Plagiarized or AI-created will receive an automatic zero, no questions asked.

The bar for a violation is low. Repeated violations could result in an automatic F for the student(s) and a referral to the History Department Chair and the Dean of the School for any further punishments, up to and including a Student Conduct hearing, removal from the class with an F, and a permanent academic integrity issue mark on transcripts, and/or removal from the college itself.

Do not plagiarize any assignment! Please navigate to

Dallas College's policies

(<https://www.dallascollege.edu/about/legal/policies-for-syllabi/pages/default.aspx#cheating>).

(<https://www.dallascollege.edu/about/legal/policies-for-syllabi/#cheating>).

If you have any doubts about what would constitute plagiarism or incorrect AI usage, please see your instructor for clarification. Students choosing to use AI or plagiarize will not have the opportunity to redo the assignment.

Unexpected Class Changes

Policy for Emergency Communications

In rare cases, I may need to change and or edit specific assignments or cancel a class activity or online appointment meeting due to an emergency or make other last-minute changes.

In this event, I will post an announcement to our eCampus course and send a copy by email. Please regularly check your Dallas College email address to make sure you do not miss emergency updates or other course communications.

Students will also receive email notifications from Dallas College Emergency Alerts. This system will alert you when icy weather or utility outages cancel classes, or in the event of other types of emergencies. See Updating Your Emergency Alerts Information to learn how to update your email address for emergency alerts, choose to be alerted by text message or phone call, or opt out of emergency alerts.

Attendance and Participation

Attendance

Attendance is tracked through active participation, including submitting assignments, engaging in discussions, and interacting with course materials. Students are expected to attend regularly and participate fully, as course content—including material for exams—will be presented in class and through assigned readings, films, and discussions.

Failure to attend or participate may affect your ability to meet course objectives and lower your grade. Absences, whether excused or unexcused, do not exempt students from completing required work. Regular attendance is a student's obligation, and excessive neglect of tasks may result in loss of knowledge and additional points offered.

If a student stops attending without officially withdrawing and is failing (below a D, or C for dual-credit students), an F will be assigned for the final grade in compliance with federal Title IV regulations. Similarly, students who complete all work but earn below a D (or C for dual credit) will receive an F.

Students should contact the instructor immediately in case of emergencies or illness to discuss possible solutions. Approval for minimal participation, missed work, or make-up work is at the instructor's discretion.

Late Work

Late Work Policy (Fast-Track Course)

All assignments with a deadline must be submitted on or before that deadline. Late work is not accepted under any circumstances.

Because this is a fast-paced 5-week course, deadlines occur quickly and assignments build on one another. Missing even a single deadline can significantly impact your ability to stay on track. For this reason, there are no extensions, reopenings, or exceptions after a deadline has passed.

If you believe you may miss a deadline due to an unexpected circumstance, you must contact Professor Avery before the assignment's due date and time. After a deadline has passed, the assignment will remain closed. No, I cannot just reopen any assignment. Requests such as "Can you reopen the assignment?" will not be granted. This policy ensures fairness and consistency for all students—everyone is given the same time and opportunity to complete their work.

Students are expected to manage their time effectively and remain aware of all due dates listed in the syllabus. Not knowing due dates, having other obligations, or poor time management are not valid reasons for missed work.

All work is submitted online in eCampus, on the assigned due date unless otherwise specified. It is your responsibility to follow the submission instructions provided.

Assignments will not be accepted via email. Email is reserved for communication only. Any assignment submitted via email without prior, explicit approval from the instructor will be treated as missing and assigned a grade of zero.
